Mr. Cleveland's speech.

At the dinner of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick in New York on Sunday night, ex-President Cleveland responded to the toast, "The United States." He said: The words to which I respond give rise to such various and impressive reflections that I find it difficult to determine the line of thought which should be followed. What is naturally and obviously suggested by the sentiment proposed is a country marvelous in its growth and development, great in its power and wealth, and free in the character of its institutions and the spirit it fits people. There is also suggested a broad and hospitable country, which opens its gates to the people of all nations who are willing to assume the duties of American citizenship, in exchange for a share in the blessings which God has in store for the American people. Nor can it be said that in national selfishness and sordid complacency, our country is blind to the welfare of others. Wherever there exists a struggle for freer government and for man's enfranchisement there will be found the aid and sympathy of the people of the United States. In this we but follow the promptings which our free condition inspires, and acknowledge the contribution we have received from the sturdy men of other lands to our population and to every element of our greatness. In this reunion of your ancient and honorable society, reminding us of such citizenship, and where the value of American citizenship is fully acknowledged, it is in every way fitting and proper that we should mention with love and with loyalty "The United States."

I have referred to the obvious significance of these words as they are related to a great, prosperous and free nation. But other nations, too, are great; they are prosperous and rich, and, in a measure, are free. "States" may mean any organized government—tyrannical, monarchical or free. It is therefore most important that we do not miss the reflection that "the United States" alone stand for the one government, always free, and founded upon human rights and equality before the law. This is presented the unity of our States and the fundamental importance of that unity, to all we are and all we hope to be.

Our national life is inseparable from this union of the States. Thus it was launched upon its career among the nations of the earth. Its machinery is suited to no other condition and its success depends upon it. Whatever might be the achievements of separate and disjointed States, nothing but the triumph of "the United States" can fully demonstrate in the eyes of the world the success of the American experiment of self-government.

To the end that our nation might be called "The United States," the fathers who forged so well the bonds of our union, yielded to each other their opinions, and discarded their prejudices. In later years, in order that "The United States" might be saved as a precious heritage, lives were sacrificed and blood was shed on many a hard fought battlefield.

We should not be content with veneration for those who made us a nation, nor with the sacred and grateful remembrance of those who shed their blood, and gave their lives for its perpetuation.

We too, owe a duty to "The United States." We can at least teach fraternity and toleration, the sure foundation of our unity and of our country's life. If these lessons are firmly established in the hearts of our countrymen we shall, to the extent that we aid in this consummation, perform the duty required of us in our day and generation.

Let us then cultivate real and genuine generosity and fraternal kindness among all our people. Let us resolve that no partisan exigency shall excuse the creation or keeping alive of irritation and jealousy among people all charged with the safety, the development and the triumph of American institutions.

Our destiny is before us. It can only be reached by union and harmony. We are not called upon to surrender or jeopardize any results in favor of our union that we may have gained in its armed defense, but rather to foster and secure those results through the patriotism of magnanimity. In the presence of the duty God has laid upon us as a nation, it should never be forgotten that failure waits on dissension and division, and that a grudging acknowledgment of a common brotherhood, or a halting co-operation in a common patriotic purpose, will surely check our national progress.

In this assemblage, where so large a representation is of the race which, in all stages of our national life, has done so much to make our country great, and whose hearts at this time turn lovingly to their brethren who struggle for the blessings which are here enjoyed, I know that reference to any element of our freedom and happiness will meet with a heartfelt response.

Here, regardless of place of birth or of former allegiance, we meet as American citizens, proud of our country, devoted to her interests and prosperity, and wishing with enthusiasm for those less favored the happiness, the freedom, the strength and the peace which are found in "The United States."

When Mr. Cleveland arose to respond to the toast he was greeted with rapturous applause, which was again and again repeated as he proceeded, and as he closed the applause swelled to most uproarious cheers. At the suggestion of the chairman Mr. Cleveland was at once made the third adopted son of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick, his predecessors being George Washington and Henry Ward Beecher.

Mr. John S. Wise, of Virginia, responded to the toast "Ireland." Mr. Wise made an eloquent speech and was enthusiastically received.
